Gold Museum

Established in 1939 by the Colombian government and run by the Banco de la República (Colombia's Central Bank), the gold museum in Bogotá boasts the world's largest collection of the gold and metal work of pre-Hispanic Andean civilizations. Over 55,000 artifacts from the ten major indigenous civilizations that inhabited present-day Colombia are on display. Located in downtown Bogotá just off the Santander square, the gold museum is a must visit in any trip to Colombia.
