DO NOT LET IT AFFECTS YOU!

DID YOU KNOW ABOUT IT BEFORE?

Cyberbullying is the use of technology to disturb, threaten, or embarrass another person. Online threats, aggressive or rude texts, tweets, posts, or messages all count as well as posting personal information, pictures, or videos designed to hurt or embarrass someone else.

Sometimes, online bullying like other kinds of bullying, can lead to serious long-lasting problems. The stress of being in a constant state of upset or fear can lead to problems with mood, energy level, sleep, and appetite. It also can make someone feel nervous, anxious, or sad. If someone is already depressed or anxious, cyberbullying can make things much worse.

Tell someone: Sometimes the police can track down an anonymous online bully, so it's often worthwhile to report it. You can also talk to your school counselor, a trusted teacher, or a family member.

Walk away: Taking a break allows you to keep things in perspective and focus on the good things in your life. It also gives you time to figure out how you want to handle things.

Resist responses: Responding when we're upset can make things worse.

Report: If users report abuse, the site administrator may block the bully from using the site in the future.

Block the bully: Most devices have settings that let you electronically block the bully or bullies from sending notes. If you don't know how to do this, ask a friend or adult who does.

Be safe online. Be sure to share your passwords only with your parent or guardian. It's also wise to think twice before sharing personal information or photos/videos that you don't want the world to see.

If you know of a friend who is acting as a cyberbully, take him or her aside, talk about it without putting your friend down, and let the bully know it's not OK; then, explain to your friend that bullying can have serious consequences for the bully, for those being bullied, and even for bystanders like you and your friends.

🚫 STOP CYBER BULLYING 🚫 It doesn't have to be physical. You don't have to punch someone in the face to hurt/make them cry. "Sticks and Stones may break my bones but words will tear my soul apart, crush my heart." We must end it.
