Holi

• What do you know about Holi?

Rta: I have not heard anything like that or what is Holi.

• Do you know another Indian festivity?

Rta: I don't know of another Indian holiday.

• In your country, what is your favorite festivity and what is the reason.

Rta: My favorite holiday in Colombia is the day of the candles, because I go out with my family for a walk or to light the candles and even if it is little the time with which I am with my family I share many things together.

Little summary: We always hope that coloring something gives life to it.

Since time immemorial, the festival Holi finds colour in numerous scriptures, such as in works like Jaimini's Purva Mimamsa-Sutras and Kathaka-Grihya-Sutras with even detailed descriptions in ancient texts.

like the Narad Purana and Bhavishyad Purana.

Krishna, as a boy would drench girl with water and colours as a sport.

Colours: Blue is supposed to symbolise Krishna, who is another manifestation of Vishnu.

Red is the most used colour on Holi, and is used to wish the Gods and Goddesses a Happy Hol.

Red is the colour of weddings, fertility, and love - with brides and married women frequently wearing the colour.

Although not a traditional Holi colour, orange is frequently used today.

What is the reason the festival use colors? Tell it in sentence.

R+a: May Holi festival be the celebration of life itself.

• Through colors share what catch your attention, use five colors to do it, put them like a pyramid starting from the most relevant for you and put at the ends the less important.

Follow THE EXAMPLE

Pyramid:

1. Purple

2. Yellow

3. Light Blue

4. Light green

5. Gray

MEANING:

Purple, for me it describes, the mystery, the elegance and the vanity.

Yellow, represents joy, optimism, light and hope.

Light Blue, for me it means, calm, confidence and health.

Light green, for me it symbolizes, youth, freshness, beauty and nature

Gray, For me it describes, solity and balance.

Why are colors important in culture and what colors important in culture and what colors do they represent in culture?

Color is important in Holi culture because it could be the representation of life itself. The colors that they represent in the culture are blue that symbolizes Krishna, red represents and is used to wish the gods and goddesses a happy Holi, Red is the color of weddings, fertility and love, and brides and married women wear it frequently, yellow is also related to Vishnu, which is almost always depicted dressed in color, green represents nature, Orange is the color of the sun, which represents a new day.

• How can you connect our culture with the HOLI Festivity?

Ans. We can connect it, starting with the fact that people get together to select something especial like the HOLI.

• If you would have the opportunity to create a new festivity, represent it in a drawing.

-What would it be?

Ans: It could be a festival that takes place all over the country or just a few cities or communities.

-What would it be the main reason of the festival?

Ans: The main reason would be that people share their arte, whatever it is about music, drawing, painting, short films made by themselves, etc.

-What would it be the purpose of your festivity?

Ans: The purpose of the festival would be that people, apart from presenting their art, have the opportunity to show or win something for that talent that they are showing.

-How could you catch the society attention to be celebrated annually?

Ans: I think it would not be so necessary to attract attention since there are many artists who want to get recognition or something in exchange for what they do, but to attract more and more attention I would advertise on television or on posters.
